

What is claimed is:

1. A method of managing pharmaceutical care of a patient comprising the steps of:

providing computer software to access data in a clinical database and data in a patient database, said data in the clinical database comprising data representing characteristics of drugs, said

5 data in the patient database comprising data representing a disease state of the patient and allergies associated with the patient; using the software to add to the patient database data representing a current drug therapy of the patient;

using the software to produce information about the relationship of the current therapy of the 10 patient and the current disease state of the patient; and evaluating the current drug therapy of the patient in relation to the current disease state of the patient, in response to the information produced about said relationship.